Technical Visit to BBC Thursday 27 May 2004

This visit has been organised by David Pick

While the “BBC” has agreed to host a visit looking at the technical aspect of broadcasting, including viewing satellite links equipment, the details are still under somewhat protracted negotiation. This would be a visit for those who have migrated towards engineering. Rather than hold up the next mailing or abandon the visit I am calling at this stage for expressions of interest on the reply form. I will then circulate further details when they become available
