CHEVENING

Tuesday 16 September 2014

---

This meeting has been organized by George Freeman and Jill Haigh

The house was built before 1630 by the Lennard family. It was bought in 1717 by General James Stanhope who was George I's First Lord of the Treasury and Chancellor of the Exchequer, made an Earl in 1718. This very grand Georgian house was designed and furnished by him and later generations of his family. It has recently been sympathetically restored by Insall & Partners and is run by a trust for the use of the government, currently for the use of the Foreign Minister and the deputy prime minister on alternate weeks. The gardens are extensive and the estate very large. The tour lasts for 1½ hours followed by tea and a chance to see the garden.
