“I am Ashurbanipal: King of the World, King of Assyria”
Exhibition at The British Museum
Monday 11 February 2019

This meeting has been organised by Tony Colclough

We visit the new BM Exhibition on Ashurbanipal, mighty king of the Neo-Assyrian empire. At the time of his reign (668–c. 631 BC) it was the largest empire in the world, stretching from Cyprus in the west to Iran in the east, and at one point it even included Egypt. Its capital Nineveh (in modern-day Iraq) was the world’s largest city. This is at a time when the Greek city-states (like Athens and Sparta) were still in their infancy and Rome was just a small settlement.

Ashurbanipal lacked magnanimity in victory and styled himself king of the world as well as of Assyria.

"I had the sanctuaries of the land Elam utterly destroyed and I counted its gods and its goddesses as ghosts... I destroyed and devastated the tombs of their earlier and later kings... I took their bones to Assyria. I prevented their ghosts from sleeping and deprived them of funerary-offerings and libations... On a march of one month and twenty-five days, I devastated the districts of the land Elam and scattered salt and cress over them."

"With the help of Ashur [the patron god of Assyria] and Ishtar, I killed them. Their heads I cut off in front of each other."

"As for the rest of the people, those still alive ... I myself now laid flat those people there as a funerary-offering... I fed their dismembered flesh to dogs, pigs, vultures, eagles, birds of the heavens, and fish of the apsû."

He also founded great library in Nineveh which was seen by the young Alexander and which contained many clay tablets in cuneiform script.

"I, Ashurbanipal, learned the wisdom of Nabu [the god of writing], laid hold of scribal practices of all the experts, as many as there are, I examined their instructions."

"I pierced the throats of raging lions, each with a single arrow."
