

This visit has been organised by Bernard Gaydon.

CHART MILLS were part of Faversham's first gunpowder factory, the Home Works, and one of the first in Britain. They were established circa 1560 but the Chart Mills were rebuilt when the Government took control some 200 years later. The Mills closed in the 1930s and fell into disrepair. The Faversham Society rescued the Mills and opened them to the public in April 1969.

Chart Mills are one of the very few fully restored gunpowder mills in the country and, given a suitable water supply, are fully working. The main feature is an incorporating mill, the process where the ingredients, saltpetre, sulphur and charcoal, having been mixed together, are incorporated together to become an explosive mixture. Incorporating was the most vital process as it determined the quality, power and evenness of burning of the powder; in all there were 11 processes in the whole manufacture of gunpowder.

The Chart Mills site had 2 waterwheels driving 4 mills, and the pit of the other wheel and the circular bed stones can still be seen as can some spare edge runners on the bank beyond, moved from another site.

Later a steam engine was added; the site is buried under the houses opposite.

Our guide at the Mills will be the Hon Curator, John Breeze.

BROGDALE FARM is the home of the National Fruit Collection and is the world's largest collection of fruit trees and plants at a single site. There are links between what is at Brogdale and what IoP REMS members saw at East Malling Research earlier this year.

After lunch in the Courtyard Restaurant (cost not included) we will be given an introductory talk (tea/coffee provided), describing the activities undertaken at this location. A guide will then take us on a walking tour of the orchards, where the apple crop should be at its peak. We can also expect to see the collections of pears, plums, cherries, cobnuts, strawberries and quinces. Our guide will describe the historical background of the fruit varieties in season and offer tastings while we explore.

After our tour, we will have the opportunity to ask more detailed questions, taste juices and purchase harvested fruit. Refreshments will be available at the Courtyard Restaurant. Specialty trees can be ordered. There is a marketplace offering a wide range of local farm produce, other food and drink, and crafts/sundries. (Organiser's comment: it is worth bringing bags, freezer blocks and a cool-box if practicable.)
